SUB sponsors Conrad speech on Space Program

Submitted by Cathy Corley

Charles "Pete" Conrad, former astronaut and now a Long Beach, California, based corporate vice-president of McDonnell-Douglas, spoke to an audience of about one hundred fifty on November 18. SUB sponsored this visit to UMR during which Conrad spoke on "America's Space Program: Past, Present, and Future."

The thrust of the talk was about the proposed manned station in space. Personal anecdotes and observations were sprinkled throughout the fifty-five minute speech.

During the Apollo moon mission program of the late 1960's and Apollo applications group asked, "What's Next?" in space. It was planned that Cape Kennedy would handle a Saturn 5 rocket launch each week; it was assumed men would routinely go back to the Moon and eventually build a lunar base. Mars would be visited in 1983, the year it would be closest to the earth in this century. A third objective was to set up a large space station in low orbit about the earth.

As part of "Phase B", many companies are now helping NASA develop specifications for a space station. NASA is scheduled to select contractors in September, 1987. By 1993, it is hoped that assembly flights will be launched and at the conclusion of four or five flights, a six person crew will be working in space.

McDonnell-Douglas has a mock-up of their proposal, a "plus" shaped station four hundred feet on the vertical and five hundred forty feet across. Fifteen by forty-five modules will be central to the station; they will serve as experimental labs, logistics, habitat, and maneuvering control rooms.

To accommodate astronauts' preferences, the station will be oriented with the vertical always toward earth. Thus the interior will have an "up-down" orientation. Ceilings and floors will be used for storage or to hold operation systems.

Flanking the modules will be energy-supplying solar panels. These will swivel to constantly remain perpendicular to the sunlight. Solar dynamics, offering more efficiency, will be added later. A nuclear powered station is not being considered because of the excessive shielding needed.

In upper and lower hangars on the vertical arms, an orbital maneuvering vehicle (a "free flier") and an orbital transfer vehicle will be parked. The free flier will co-orbit with the station, allowing for zero-gravity experimentation and production. The transfer ship will go to other orbits, sometimes to retrieve satellites for repair.

Cargo compartments of the space station will match those of the space shuttles, allowing the shuttles to serve as delivery trucks of supplies as well as taxis for personnel.

SkyLab, America's first orbital manned station, was a one hundred foot long, three module set-up, visited by three, three-man crews for a total of 171 days in space. It was abandoned and later disintegrated upon re-entry.

Life in the new station will be much different that it was for the Skylab astronauts such as Conrad. Instead of wearing clothes and then throwing them away, space station personnel will have to do laundry. Whirlpool is one company trying to create a zero-g washer. Instead of seventy-nine meal choices, two hundred twenty-eight are ready so far. Each person will have individual sleep compartments with computer access for earth communications, movie viewing, and other leisure choices.

An exercise room will be part of one module. Muscle atrophy is possible in the weightless conditions. With proper exercise, the proposed ninety day rotation will not cause any undue effects on the crews.

Mr. Conrad commented that his return to gravity was "like a dentist's lead blanket all over my body."

He added that it usually takes thirty days to adjust to no gravity and the same amount of time to readjust.

As with the shuttle crews, the full complement of sixteen to eighteen will fit in one of three categories. Some will be "drivers", NASA pilots and navigators. Some will be mission specialists, also of NASA. Payload specialists will come from outside the agency.

On recent shuttle flights, Charlie Walker of McDonnell-Douglas served as a payload specialist. His work has been with the separation of biological materials with the goal of developing purer pharmaceuticals in greater quantity and cheaper than on earth. A once-a-year shot of insulin for diabetics, interferon for fighting some forms of cancer, a treatment for emphysema loom.

The Japanese and Europeans have each signed on to have their own lab modules, renting crew space from the U.S. It is estimated that by ten years after completion of the station, ten to twenty billion dollars of commercial business will be done.

Before these projections can be reached, McDonnell-Douglas has many questions. V-P Conrad himself has been in the large water tank where neutral buoyancy is used to simulate space conditions. While working on a five by five foot assemblage, concerns about the design of joints are addressed. These need to be strong yet of a form that will assemble and disassemble easily. By halving the underwater construction times, it is estimated that two full arms of the station can be achieved in twenty-four hours of e.v.a.

Conrad brought out that we are "twenty years behind on our fifty year program," citing the 1985 Presidential commission's recommendations for a large space station, the colonization of the moon, and visits to Mars as the same goals as pronounced in 1965.

In 1967, President Johnson said "stay on the Moon." It became politically unpalatable to push other projects. The last three moon flights were cancelled.

SkyLab did come about in 1973 and one hundred forty-six disciplines such as oceanography and agriculture benefited. President Nixon squelched a Mars trip and the space station.

President Ford was not in office long enough to affect NASA and President Carter was not interested. In his administration cuts were made in the budget that kept the shuttles from having more capabilities.

"(We) need Presidents to keep the country focused . . .," Conrad maintains.

With the French and Japanese touting their own manned ventures to take place in the next six to nine years, he emphasizes, "If we don't stay with this and on top of it, we'll be buying those services from other people."

In other comments during the evening, Conrad recalled some feelings about his first venture, his Gemini flight in 1965, "Eight days in a garbage can . . . the longest time I ever spent in my life."

Jischke writes monthly letter: On student leadership

The fall semester is just about over, and I want to wish you the best of luck on your final examinations and the best of good times over the holidays.

Before you leave for vacation, Mrs. Jischke and I would like to invite you to our Holiday Open House at the Chancellor's Residence, 506 West Eleventh Street, between 1 and 5 p.m. on Sunday, Dec. 14. We hope you will drop by and see us.

The holiday season reminds everyone of gifts and the realization that all are not material ones.

Among the gifts which UMR students possess are a talent for excelling in both academic and extracurricular activities and for sharing know-how with others. This talent and sharing were very much in evidence last month at the Blue Key Leadership Forum.

Blue Key exemplifies the remarkable reputation which UMR students hold—as that organization's membership emphasizes both scholastic accomplishment and interest in campus activities, and its programs stress helping others.

At the recent forum, some UMR students who are both leaders and who have leadership potential heard talks on better ways to delegate authority, motivate groups, communicate, manage time and follow parliamentary procedure. It was a forum both for recognizing student leaders and for looking at ways for them to enhance their leadership qualities.

This recent Blue Key Forum was another example of UMR student accomplishments and of their gift of leadership—a gift well shared in this holiday season.

Sincerely,

Martin C. Jischke
Chancellor

Congratulations are in order for the following UMR students who have been accepted into the Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges for 1986-87: Christiane Alexander, Tim Allen,

Campus Coalition being organized

By Denny Henson
Staff Writer

There's a new organization on campus, or at least a newly revitalized one. The Legislative Action Committee of the Student Council has organized the Campus Coalition, a student organization whose purpose is lobbying the Missouri State Legislature on behalf of student interests.

A meeting was held Wednesday, November 19th, and the goals of the organization and its plans for the Spring semester were discussed. The Campus Coalition meets once a month, and its members are expected to spend one day a month in Jefferson City lobbying at the Capital Building.

The Campus Coalition is affiliated with the Association of the Students of the University of Missouri, which was started in 1974 to represent student interests. The ASUM is based in Columbia, but hopes to expand to the other three campuses, and UMR's Campus Coalition can be as successful as the UMC organization, they hope to make UMR student voices heard this spring when the state legislature considers bills on appropriations, hazing, and other topics of concern to students. It must be stressed however, that the Campus Coalition does not represent the interests of UMR, but rather of its student body. If you are interested in becoming involved with the Campus Coalition, contact Sean Foote at the Student Council office (341-4280) or at home (364-1490) for more details.

Who says UMR doesn't party? Not PLAYBOY!

a ranking by those who know best—the students themselves—of the nation's most dedicated good-time campuses compiled by Wayne Duvall. Yes, it's cleanup time. Drinking-age limits have been raised, AIDS is scaring the heinous out of casual sex and recreational drug abuse is, thankfully, being cracked down on. All to the good, we say. But, we wondered, how are college students reacting? Are campuses really turning into monasteries? Or is there a parallel universe out there where kids are doing what kids have always done? We decided to poll the undergraduates themselves. Not the freshmen who've already decided which investment bank they're going to interview for—this was social research, folks. Over a six-month period, we interviewed campus club leaders, dorm rush chairmen, fraternity presidents and other campus social lights at more than 250 colleges nationwide and asked them if the partying was really over. The answer, from California to Rhode Island, was "Hell, no!" We were inundated with candid answers for leading party schools and then compiled this list of the top contenders.

So here, as a reminder that life goes on even in solemn times, is the definitive ranking of fun schools as selected by the students.

Campus organizations interested in a Student Council appropriation for next semester may obtain an application for appropriations on the door of the Student Council office 202 University Center - West beginning January 22, 1987.

The application must be completed and returned to the Student Council office by 12 p.m. Monday February 2, 1987. Organizations will also be requested to send a representative for an interview with the Campus Organizations Committee to answer questions about their applications sometime in early February.

ATTENTION DECEMBER GRADUATES. Commencement announcements are now available in the Registrar's Office for all graduating students. These announcements are provided by the University at no cost to students who will be graduating on December 21, 1986.

$ financial aid $

The Consulting Engineers Council of Missouri is pleased to announce a scholarship for the 1987-88 academic year. The top award for this scholarship will be $7000 and three $1000 scholarships will also be given.

Eligibility for this scholarship is as follows: A student must be a junior or senior beginning with the Fall of 1987 (not eligible, however, if graduating in December of 1987), be in the upper half of your engineering class, and a United States citizen. Preference given to those interested in pursuing a consulting engineering career.

The Point System to determine the winner is as follows: Work Experience (25 points), College Activities (17 points), High School Activities (6 points), Essay (24 points), Cumulative Grade point Average (28 points). The essay subject is to describe the contributions of consulting engineers to the development of this country in 500 words.

To qualify for this scholarship, a student must submit an official college transcript and an application form. Applications are available by contacting: CECMo Scholarship Program, 205 East Dunklin, Jefferson City, Missouri, 65101 or by calling (314) 634-4080.

The deadline for applying for this scholarship is January 15, 1987.

For further information, please contact the Student Financial Aid Office.

Honeywell is pleased to announce their 5th annual Futurist Awards Competition. Ten students will be offered $3000 awards plus each winner will also be offered a 1987 Honeywell

Summer Internship. To be eligible for this competition, you must be a currently enrolled full-time student. Both graduate and undergraduate students are eligible.

To enter this competition, a student must write 2 essays (1500 words each). The first essay should be predictions about significant developments in any one of the following subject areas: 1) Electronic Communications, 2) Energy, 3) Aerospace, 4) Computer Science, 5) Manufacturing Automation, or 6) Office Automation. The 2nd essay should be written about the societal impact of the changes you've predicted.

The entries will be judged according to the following criteria: Creativity (30 points), Feasibility (30 Points), Clarity of Expression (30 points), and Legibility (10 points).

To obtain an entry form, contact Honeywell at their toll-free number, (1-800-328-5111, ext. 1581). All entry forms must be requested by December 31st and the application materials must be postmarked no later than January 31st.

For further information, please contact the Student Financial Aid Office.

The Natl. Assoc. of Women in Construction is pleased to offer scholarships for the 1987-88 academic school year. To be eligible, a student must be a first, second or third year student in a course of study leading to a degree in construction, construction management, architecture, civil, mechanical, structural or electrical engineering. The applicant must also desire a career in one of the above. Students must be enrolled full-time; part-time students are not eligible.

Consideration for these scholarships is based upon a student's interest in construction, their grades, extracurricular activities, employment experience, evaluations and financial need.

To apply for these scholarships, you must complete both a four-page application and have an evaluation form completed by your academic advisor. Both of these forms are available in the Student Financial Aid Office. It is also necessary that you submit an official transcript of your college grades.

All materials must be mailed and postmarked no later than January 1, 1987. For further information, please contact the Student Financial Aid Office.

The Engineers Wives Auxiliary of the St. Louis Chapter of Missouri Society of Professional Engineers (MSPE) is pleased to announce that they will be awarding six (6) $1000 scholarships to deserving engineering students for the 1987-88 academic year.

Qualifications are as follows: Must be a Junior or Senior engineering student beginning with the Fall 87 semester, and have good scholastic achievement and financial need. Special consideration is given to applicants from the Metropolitan St. Louis area.

Application forms and further information available in the Student Financial Aid Office. Deadline for submitting this application is December 5, 1986.

Interview with Patricia Hurley regarding Red China

By Cordell Smith
Staff Writer

The late Patrick Hurley was Secretary of War under President Herbert Hoover. During 1944 and 1945, Mr. Hurley served as ambassador to China, resigning in anger at the State Department's undermining of the Government of China and the Department's active support of the Chinese Communists then attempting to destroy the Government of Chiang Kai-shek.

The following interview with Ambassador Hurley's daughter Patricia Hurley was conducted on August 1 of this year. Widely accepted as an authority on China affairs, Miss Hurley currently resides in Albuquerque, New Mexico.

[Because of the length of the original interview, this has been edited. To preserve readability, however, ellipses (...) have not been inserted to indicate omissions. The reader is free to make what he will of that fact.]

Q. Miss Hurley, as you know, the Reagan Administration has been pursuing a sort of Detente II with Communist China. This spring, for example, Reagan authorized the sale of $550 million in sophisticated avionics equipment to the Communists. The Defense Department under Secretary Caspar Weinberger has characterized Red China as a "friendly, non-aligned" country. Will you comment?

A. Yes, I think it's absolutely frightening because I do not believe that Red China is in any way a friendly country. For one thing, Teng Hsiao-ping, in an address to the politburo of China said that [while] it would probably take till the end of the century - he thought - they would eventually be in a position to fight the United States.

Q. Then you don't accept the position of the Sino-Soviet split, the concept that somehow Red China would come to our aid against the Soviet Union?

A. No, I certainly don't, because they are two Communist countries. I like to use the analogy that your right leg is Red China, your left leg is the Soviet Union, and people are only looking from the knees down. But the body of both countries is Communism and you can expect them to go together.

Q. Let's talk a bit about your father. Your father resigned in anger because of the State Department's actions in attacking the legal Government of China.

A. Well, they [the State Department] did many things, and Father, in his letter of resignation to then-President Harry Truman, said 'you have Communists and imperialists in the State Department, and they are undermining American foreign policy all over the world - especially in China.'

That's because he [Ambassador Hurley] had discovered members of the State Department had gone to Mao Tse-tung in Yenan and said 'we will bypass the Ambassador and General [Albert C.] Wedmeyer - who was the highest representative of the United States in China, aside from my father - we will bypass these men and take you directly to Washington and make sure that you get all the aid rather than Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.'

Fortunately, they were found out. I don't know if you want the whole story; it's kind of a long story - the man who did it, who tried to arrange for them was a fellow by the name of John Stewart Service, and he had flown up to Yenan to put this idea before Mao Tse-tung. And because Yenan was within a hundred miles of the Japanese lines, and this was an American airplane, they thought the Japanese might attack it. The pilot flew it away - left Mr. Service there in Yenan (and) flew the airplane away - and he had motor trouble and couldn't get back.

So when my father the Ambassador arrived back in town, and General Wedmeyer came back from India where he had been doing business, they found out that Mr. Service was in Yenan and had gone there without orders. He had said he was ordered there; that's how he got the airplane - but it was not true. So they found out about the plot.

Q. What can you recall about General [George Catlett] Marshall?

A. Well, frankly, I'll come right out and say that General Marshall did not have the best interests of the United States at heart. He personally boasted of the fact that he had disarmed thirty-nine Chinese divisions with the stroke of a pen. (He meant the divisions of Chiang Kai-shek.)

Q. I understand those arms had already been paid for, in fact.

A. They had been paid for, and they were expected, but he [Marshall] put a boycott on all arms to our ally, Chiang Kai-shek, and waited while Mao Tse-tung was supplied by the Soviet Union.

Q. Of course, as Chiang Kai-shek was undermined - eventually destroyed - they fled to Taiwan. The mainland Government set up a Communist government, predictably, and - as with any Communist government - they began engaging in mass-murder.

A. Absolutely. I met many people immediately after the war, who were talking about how Mao's troops would come into a town at night, surround the mayor's house, and shoot the first man, woman, or child out in the morning. And when anybody [else] ran out to see what happened, they would shoot them, so that the people who were left in the town were the ones that had no initiative.

Being the daughter of Patrick Hurley, and Patrick Hurley was known as a friend of the Nationalist Government of China - many people who have escaped from China - quite a few do talk to me, and they tell me the stories of what happened to them and what they know. When you see thousands upon thousands of people willing to brave the shark-infested waters to swim to Hong Kong, who are willing to try to get across the straits to Matsu Island in order to be taken to Taiwan, I'm inclined to believe them.

Q. I understand they [Hong Kong] have quite a dense population...

A. ... their very, very dense population is with the refugees from Red China. This is where they get most of their population. Their population doubled within the time that Mao took over, doubled or tripled with people desperate to get away from Red China. It was so frightful, and it still is.

Violence used as solution to disagreements worldwide

By Rich Yancey
Staff Writer

The saying, "The more things change, the more they stay the same", can be easily applied to mankind's readiness to use violence to resolve disputes. One would think we could learn something from the past, but death and destruction is increasing rather than decreasing. From Abel's murder at the hands of his brother Cain, to the recent assassination of Rolando Olalia, a prominent Filipino labor leader, man has chosen to use violence and death in settling disagreements.

Since W.W.II, there has been no real peace in the world. At present, there are at least forty wars taking place involving roughly one fourth of the world's nations. While some of these conflicts are relatively small internal guerilla campaigns, others are large scale wars involving major armies. As America's stake in international economics and politics becomes larger, it behooves us to have a clearer understanding of the problems that exist in other nations. A few of the larger, more destabilizing conflicts are outlined below.

Mideast: The six year old Iran-Iraq war continues with no end in sight. Several hundred thousand people have died so far. In Afghanistan, roughly 100,000 Soviet troops are fighting thousands of mountain rebels who control about eighty percent of the country side. The Lebanon civil war between Christian and Moslem militias drags on with input from the Israelis, the Syrians, and various Palestinian groups.

Far East: Kampuchea's thirteen year war shows no indication of abatement with over 100,000 Vietnamese troops occupying the country. Estimates are that as many as four million people have died. In Indonesia, roughly 100,000 lives have been taken in a civil war in East Timor.

Latin America: El Salvadoran government troops continue to battle jungle based rebels while in neighboring Nicaragua, the U.S. backed Contras threaten the Sandinistas.

Africa: South Africa takes center stage on this continent with major conflicts against black-nationalist guerrillas of Namibia and anti-apartheid militants. The Ethiopian - Somali frontier is an unhealthy place as a twenty year war boils on. Libyan - sponsored guerrillas continue attacks in Chad with occasional clashes with Nigerian troops over disputed border territory.

While the ten year on-going wars listed above are probably the most bloodiest at present, they are by no means by themselves. What with armed conflict taking place in Northern Ireland, Peru, Honduras, Uganda, Angola, Malaysia, Laos, and at least two dozen other countries, peace seems to be a distant candle on a dark night. All this goes without mentioning the millions of troops facing each other across the East and West German borders and the North and South Korean borders.

Obviously, our governments attitude toward other nations should take these conflict into consideration. This also applies to our attitudes as individuals. The present state of volatility in human relationships indicates a need for cautious actions backed by honest integrity and an understanding of the problems that face the various nations we deal with. Arrogance has no place in this world of car bomb assassinations and push button ICBM's.

Conrad

During Gemini 11 while admiring the beautiful sight of Australia he broadcast, "Eureka, the world is really round!"

The Flat Earth Society of the United Kingdom deluged him with bags of mail to tell him "he didn't know what he was talking about."

Even so, in summarizing his Moon and space ventures over his eleven year stint with NASA he admitted, "Every bit of it was super."

Regarding the money spent for the Strategic Defense Initiative (SDI), Conrad feels that more applications than destroying missiles will come from the research. To make SDE work, a capability of processing a tremendous amount of data is needed. This may benefit medicine, engineering, and other fields.

"(It won't be) . . . wasted money which can't be applied elsewhere . . . (I have) much more trust in the Russians than in some of the kooks in the world. I'd like to have the capability to defend myself."

In other questions addressed, Conrad told the audience that a replacement for the Challenger has been authorized by President Reagan. The new NASA administrator wants to ask Congress for a fifth orbiter two years from now.

Blue Key holds leadership forum

By Jon R. Kadane
Staff Writer

Blue Key National Honor Fraternity conducted its bi-annual leadership forum on Wednesday, November 19, in Centennial Hall of the University Center-East. Attending the five hour session were approximately seventy-five students, all of whom were representing one of the campus organizations here at UMR.

Included in the topics and speakers were: Delegation of Authority, by the Military Science department; Time Management, by Dr. Henry Metzner of the Engineering Management department; Discussion of Leadership, by UMR Chancellor Martin C. Jischke; Corporate View-point Leadership, by Don Higginbotham; Communications, by Dr. Sam Geonetta of the Speech and Media Studies department; Group Motivation, by Mr. Mark Mullin; Parliamentary Procedures, by Stephen Douglas; and finally University Relations, by Dean Ken Robertson.

Sigma Chi aids Ber Juan Park

By Denny Henson
Staff Writer

Thanks to the work of members of Sigma Chi fraternity and Park Superintendent Ken Kwantus, the Ber Juan Park softball fields are well on their way to having new electronic scoreboards. On Saturday November 15th, fraternity members dug ditches and buried the electric lines for the score-boards. The new scoreboards will be located to the right and slightly behind the first bases of three fields at Ber Juan. The installation should be complete this spring, and the scoreboards will hopefully be available for use during intramural games.

The work was done by Sigma Chi as a service project for the Rolla community and was organized by Joe Ribble, Sigma Chi's public relations chairman.

Freshmen scholarship winners announced

Submitted by:
Tau Beta Pi

The winners of the Tau Beta Pi Freshman Engineering Scholarship have been announced. They are Robert G. Ford, a civil engineering student, and Donald W. Mueller, a mechanical engineering student. Both are 4.0 students.

The $250 award is given to UMR freshmen engineering students who achieve outstanding academic performance.

Tau Beta Pi is a national engineering honor society whose purpose is to recognize superior scholarship in engineering fields. The Missouri chapter was established in 1906.

University Dames hold dinner

By Missy Hagler
Staff Writer

The University Dames a student spouse organization at the University of Missouri-Rolla, will hold their first annual Christmas potluck dinner at 4 p.m. Sunday, December 7, at Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity, 1107 State Street. Husbands and Children are welcome.

According to the University Dames board, a visit from Santa will highlight the evening.

All persons attending are asked to bring a canned good to donate to the Local Organization for Various Emergencies (L.O.V.E.).

St. Patrick's Day 1987 cancelled!

By J.T. Martin
Staff Writer

The title worked and now you are reading this. This is not a letter to the editor nor does it accuse the Mets of cheating.

It's better.

It's a survey.

Please read this through and answer all the questions. Your cooperation is greatly appreciated.

1) You walk into a statics class and your teacher is obviously American and speaks clearly and intelligibly, how do you react?

- a) Walk out because you know you couldn't be that lucky.
- b) Check your schedule to make sure you're in the right class.
- c) Check your schedule to make sure you're on the right campus.

2) You've got a class where the teacher is straight file, how do you utilize this resource?

- a) Use it only to check homework answers after you've done them all yourself.
- b) Copy problems only when hard pressed for time.

c) Copy problems only when hard pressed for time to go out.
d) Copy problems, memorize tests, never open the book, then realize the next semester you're going to flunk out because you didn't learn anything, and it was a prerequisite for three of your classes.

3) You're walking past the hockey puck wearing regular clothes and a board rep asks you if you've got your green yet, how do you react?

- a) Buy a sweatshirt because you've been meaning to get around to it.
- b) Ignore him because you already bought your green.
- c) Ignore him because you'll be at home over St. Pat's because you don't like to have fun ever since nobody showed up at your birthday party in the 5th grade because you were the class egghead and had no friends.
- d) Ignore him because you don't speak English.

4) You're walking past the hockey puck with your St. Pat's sweatshirt on and a board rep asks you if you've got your green yet, how do you react?

- a) Ignore him as usual.
- b) Ignore him and wonder what his parents are like.

c) Say "No," and keep walking.
d) Realize that last comment was the final straw as you break under the pressure and try to force-feed him your sweatshirt.

5) Which class is that cute freshman girl most likely to flunk?

- a) Chemistry
- b) Calculus
- c) Alg./Trig.
- d) Intro. to Engineering

6) That cute freshman girl contracted Rolla Syndrome, how many pounds has she gained?

- a) 10
- b) 20
- c) I can't count that high.
- d) She flunked out already.

7) An ugly drunk guy is making passes at you at a party, how do you escape?

- a) Tell him you have to use the bathroom.
- b) Tell him he has to use the bathroom.
- c) Start a conversation using key words such as "engagement", "marriage", "Mr. Right", and "VD".
- d) When he asks if you'd like to dance, respond by saying, "Yes, but I don't see anyone I'd like to dance with."

8) An ugly drunk girl is making passes at you at a party, how do you tear yourself away?

- a) Tell her you have to use the bathroom.
- b) Tell her she has to use the bathroom because you saw 10 of her friends heading that way.
- c) Introduce her to a drunk friend and disappear.
- d) When she asks if you'd like to dance, respond by saying, "No", and walk away.

9) Where do you go to pick up a guy?

- a) All-campus party
- b) Local bar
- c) Cafeteria
- d) Any fraternity

10) Where do you go to pick up a girl?

- a) All-campus party
- b) Local bar
- c) Mizzou
- d) The magazine stand

HERE'S THE CLINCHER FOLKS:

11) Statistics show that on a typical college campus over 65% of the students are sexually involved with someone; do you fall in the 65% group?

- a) Yes, I think.
- b) Okay, sometimes.
- c) Probably.
- d) Maybe not.
- e) All right! No.
- f) No, but I think I know which school those 35% people go to.

If you had reacted in a fashion that we had not thought of, feel free to drop a line letting us know your reactions. Maybe we'll even print them if they're good enough.

Connor's UMR visit was enriching

Source: OPI

The University of Missouri-Rolla presented British poet Tony Connor reading poems from his latest book, "The Spirit of the Place," on Thursday, Nov. 13, in the Mark Twain Room of the University Center-East.

Since 1975 Connor has given four readings of his poetry at UM-Rolla. He is the author of eight books of poems and several plays that have been performed in England, Canada, and the United States.

According to Dr. Larry Vonalt, UMR associate professor of English, "Connor's poetry is an intense and detailed contemplation of the affections and difficulties of ordinary life. It attempts to reconcile the poet's voice with the voice of the common man."

The poems in "The Spirit of the Place" explore Connor's experiences in England, the United States and India, a country he has visited several times in the last few years.

Connor's visit to UMR was sponsored by the UMR Honors Program and the UMR English department.

St. Pat's Facts

By Mike Gross
Staff Writer

We are counting down to the 1987 "Best Ever" St. Pat's. Today, there are only 100 days left until the biggest party of the year hits Rolla. It won't be long now before the whole town starts turning green.

Green sales for this semester are going to end pretty soon. If you haven't picked up the Green you wanted to give your family or friends for Christmas, do so soon. You don't have much time left.

Also, the St. Pat's Board would like to thank all the fans who came out a couple of weeks ago to watch the soccer game against the IFC. It was an exciting game, and we hope that you enjoyed it.

Finally, on behalf of the St. Pat's Board, I'd like to wish everyone a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. Remember, use your common sense when you are out partying.

Barb,
Just wanted to say "Thanks," your special. The privilege is as much mine as yours. With your help, I might just make it through this one. See ya over break!! Watch that "Backwash" in your soda.
—Ton Aml

Bagdalia & Zagdolia,
You two are the best! What would I do without you? Thanks for all the great times and for always being there. Remember, Bag, you're more apart of me than I am of myself. When are we going to use the T.P. in my room? Gotta Bolt!
—Love, Magnolia

P.S. FOOD!
Jill,
You're a sweetie.
—Fred

Hey Z.I.T. Monster!!
Yeah — you!! You know who I'm talking about! Next time you'll have to catch me before I volunteer my services. Also, "I hate it" when you blow in my face. Love (XXOXOX).
—Cupcakes Girl

Dou,
This is the only classified I've ever sent you. I just wanted to say I Love You, and I know we'll have a great life together.
—Girlfriend

Nasty Girl,
Again, it was very nice and slippery in your bed. If you don't watch it, you might spoil me.
—Little Bo Peep

N.G.,
When do we get to rub the baby oil all over each other? This will be the first time I've ever had kinky sex. I can't wait!
—Your Sick Friend

Kath,
Thanks for everything for my birthday!
P.S. "Little shivers tippy-toeing up and down my spine!"
—Greg

Mark,
You big stud, take me to bed or lose me forever.
—Flash

The D.D.,
We, the UMR students, suggest you keep your big mouth shut or we'll find a place for it! (i.e. Bunggholly)
—The LTD II Man

Ashley B.,
Happy B-day Dec. 4th!
—Uncle T.

The D.D. (Double Dork),
The reason Pikes look alike to you is because they are all so good looking and you aren't.
—UMR Women
P.S. As busy as your hand is writing your stupid ads, I bet you have a real good time with it, when you are alone.

Dave,
Wish we would have started this earlier in the semester but I guess we've caught up pretty quick, huh? Hope you have a great X-mas. Be good and I'll come see ya. When are you gonna sit on my lap and tell me what you want?
—Santa Claus

Es and Lara,
Those of us who live on the quiet floor because we like it QUIET are more than a little unhappy with you because you make so much noise. So either tuen down the volume or move!!
—Your Disturbed Neighbors

Laverne,
You are a very special person. Thank you for being you.
—Love, Ann

To the Doc,
I thought about telling you I stay up late at night fantasizing about your body next to mine. But thanks to you I don't have to fantasize anymore. It's been great! Hope you're here in January.
—Annie

Hi Cat,
You are such a sweet girl.
—Tiger

Kirsten,
Happy graduation! It's going to be strange not having you to bother ... Good luck, and stock up on the stationary.
—Lico, YLS

Dawn,
Bye, boss! You'd better be ready for guests if you're only 2 hours away. Better yet, fix that ignorant car and roadtrip.
—JoG

Kelly S.,
Buy stationary, but a car, bye, bye.
P.S. I'll miss ya!
—JoG

Eagle,
P.P. DOES NOT want Buff's. He wants tankers, 135's or maybe even a C-23. Anything bigger and he won't be able to reach the pedals.

Did you hear Chris is graduating? Congrats, you bum! Good Luck!
—That Sports Guy & Jellyfish

Obnoxious Girlfriend,
It's been a great semester. Hope you get to go skiing. I'll miss you!
—That Sports Guy

To My Man,
I just want to say how happy I am that things are going so well between us. I have never been so happy or close to anyone ever before. I really cherish the times we are able to spend together. I can't wait 'til Christmas break, and yet, I can. I know that next year will be tough but I also know we can get through anything together. I miss you and love you very much.
—Your Friend & Lover

P.S. Just three more weeks — 'til Christmas, of course.
—Kate (alias Marian),
I'm glad you got the job, but I'm really going to miss you. We had a lot of great times together. Stay in touch.
—The LTD II Man

Sigma Pi Football Fans,
Congrats on the spirit award! You all really deserved it. Thank you for being at all of the UMR football games and showing you spirit! Hope to see you at the basketball games!!!

Men's Basketball

Miners open season by beating Lindenwood and Westminster

By Mark Buckner
Staff Writer

The UMR Miner men's basketball team is a young team—there are just two seniors on the '86-87 squad—but the team does have a weakness in that the Miners don't have a big center. But, although the Miners lack a big center, they do not have any weaknesses in the guard and forward positions.

"Hopefully with our lack of size, we can compensate with quickness and speed," said Miner head coach Billy Key, who enters his 23rd year as head coach of the Miners.

Sophomore Tim Hudwalker, who was one of the most pleasant surprises on last year's team, is the Miners starting center at 6'6". "He is a very aggressive player and shows great emotion and intensity," says Key.

The only other Miner player that's as tall as Hudwalker is junior David Dean, a junior college transfer. Key speaks highly of Dean and said that the Miners need him if UMR is going to be competitive. In the first two games of the season, Dean has played well, scoring 14 points against Westminster College and 10 points against Lindenwood College.

The Miners are off to a good start this year with easy victories over Westminster, 83-65, and Lindenwood, 88-57. Not surprisingly, Key considers it very important that the Miners play well before they play against teams in the rugged MIAA Conference.

In the game against Westminster, junior forward Julius Lewis had a super game, grabbing a game-high 14 rebounds and scoring a game-high 24 points. Along with Dean's 14 points, Duane Huddleston scored 13 while Hudwalker added 10.

Of Lewis, Key said, "He's a good, strong rebounder with good physical strength. He is a quick jumper, and we expect him to play very well."

Of the game against Westminster, Key said, "In the first half, we were a little out of sync but we played much better in the second half. We played pretty good defense and outrebounded them in the second half." To say the least, that last statement is quite true because the Miners outrebounded Westminster 40-13.

The Miners had even a more balanced scoring attack in their game last Saturday against Lindenwood than the balance the team had against Westminster.

Hudwalker played probably the best game he's played in a Miner uniform as he led the Miners with 19 points and also had eight rebounds. Huddleston added 15 and lead UMR with 11 boards. Lewis scored 12 points, senior guard Stu O'Kraski had 11, and Dean had 10 points. For the second consecutive game, the Miners totally dominated the boards, 36-13.

If the Miners are going to be competitive, they need to improve their rebounding, defense, and shooting, even though the Miners have numerous good shooters. One player UMR needs for the entire season is a healthy Duane Huddleston, who missed a number of games last season because of an injury.

"He's had a real good attitude this year. It's the best attitude I think he's ever had. He really wants to play," Key said about Huddleston.

The Miners also have one of the better, and maybe the quickest guards in the conference, in Adrian Davis. "He's got more confidence in himself this year. He puts a lot of pressure on himself," said Key.

If the Miners do shoot the ball well in most games, they will be competitive. Something that will help UMR is the new three-point line in college basketball, which is only 19'9" away from the basket. The Miners have a number of good long range shooters that can easily hit from that distance.

The Miners have two freshmen guards on this year's team who'll be important players coming off the bench, William McCauley and Greg Sallee.

The Miners still have four more home games before the end of the current semester. Their next games are Dec. 3 against Harris-Stowe; Dec. 6 against Missouri Valley; Dec. 8 against Webster University; and Dec. 13 against SIU-Edwardsville. The Miners' first home conference game is Jan. 14 against UMSL.

Women's Basketball

Lady Miners dominate opponents, posting 4-0 record

By Tracy Boland
Asst. Sports Editor

The Lady Miners, who were picked pre-season to take 7th place in an 8-team conference, have sent shock waves through the MIAA by winning their first four games. These victories included winning the Washburn Classic trophy by upsetting the Northwest Missouri State Bearkittens, a team picked to place 4th in the conference.

Quincy College was the first team to fall to UMR a week ago last Saturday by a score of 72-58. The Lady Hawks had a field goal percentage of 32%, as compared to the Miners 53%, but the women were out shot at the free throw line 77%-46%. Overall, the Miners' 33 field goals and 6 free throws, while Quincy netted 17 field goals and 24 free throws.

Jennifer Cordes, freshman forward, was the lead scorer of the evening with 16 total points, and, according to coach Mary Ortelie, played a particularly good first collegiate game. Tanya Hough also made a solid showing versus the Hawks, as she snatched 9 rebounds off the boards and scored 12 points for the Miners.

The Ladies' next opponent was Evangel College, who went down to UMR 77-57. Once again, the Miners dominated the field goal percentage, outshooting the Crusaders by eight baskets, 33-25. The women shot 78% from the free throw line, going 6 for 6 in the first half. Cordes, Hough, and Dianna Pasley racked up most of the points for the Miners, with 17, 17 and 16 points respectively. Cordes also lead the defense with four rebounds.

The third and fourth games of the season took place during the Washburn Classic, a small tournament consisting of 4 teams. The Miners won the classic by defeating Washburn in the first round, 62-55, and by thrashing NWMSU 106-90 in the finals.

The Washburn Ichabods outshot UMR percentage-wise at the free throw line, but the Miners made up for it by sinking 25 baskets to Washburn's 21.

Cordes proved herself a valuable recruit once more this season by scoring 17 points during the game, but Susan Mullins was right on her heels with 16 points. UMR out-rebounded the Ichabods by a 2-1 margin, made possible by Cordes and Hough, who had 3 rebounds each.

But by far the most impressive game this season was the upset over NWMSU. The Miners shot an incredible 63% for the overall field goal percentage, and were 14 for 17 from the free throw line. The Miners also set a scoring record for most points scored in one game.

Susan Mullins led the team with scoring 37 points, sinking 17 baskets and going 3 for 3 from the line. Dianna Pasley made 12 baskets on 14 attempts and scored 25 total points, while Jennifer Cordes followed with 24 total points, 6 of which were made by shooting 100% from the line. Two Miners, Tanya Hough and Jennifer Cordes, not surprisingly, were named to the All-Tournament team.

The Miners have yet to play a conference game and won't until after Christmas, but at their present rate, they will cause many critics to seriously reevaluate their previous predictions.

The next four games for the women are all home games and take place as follows:

Harris Stowe* Dec. 3, 5:30
NE Missouri Dec. 6, 5:30
School of the Ozarks Dec. 11, 7 p.m.
McKendrex College* Dec. 13, 5:30.
*Denotes Double Header.

A winning team is always more fun to watch, so come out and see the Lady Miners in action.

Men's Intramurals season winds down

By Jim Lawson
Staff Writer

The intramural season is winding down with volleyball playoffs last week. Regular season standings are printed below. Playoff results are not available.

At the last Intramural Manager's meeting it was announced that tennis and horseshoes must be completed by dead week or they will be cut off with no champions. So, put on your parka and pitch some horseshoes. Lambda Chi and Tech will brave the cold in the doubles final.

Also, at the last meeting, Athlete-of-the-Week honors went to Tony Waltermann of TJ-N. Tony backed his teammates from his goalie position and recorded shutouts vs Tekes and Pikes in the playoffs. "Play with pain" Tony did all of this with a broken arm.

OAS was named "Team-of-the-Week." They finished in last place in their league last year and now are in the playoffs with a 6-0 record. They probably changed something. Congrats to Tony and OAS.

Final results are posted for soccer, billiards, and table tennis at the Hockey Puck so rush on up there and check them out.

The final Intramural Manager's meeting of the semester will be Wednesday, December 3rd, at 5:30 in the same room we always meet in at the multipurpose building, basketball entries are due at this time.

M-Club Athlete of the week

Rip Stringer is this week's M-Club Athlete of the Week. Rip, a senior defensive back, closed out his UMR career with a banner day against Grand Valley State (Mich.) by intercepting a pass in the endzone and recording several key open-field tackles. Rip was also named to the All-Conference Honorable Mention Team for his efforts this season.

WHEN IS THE RIGHT TIME TO CALL YOUR BOYFRIEND?

- When the president of Phi Gamma Delta asks you to Saturday night's Fiji Formal.
- After racquetball class, to tell him that the instructor with the Australian accent and those blue eyes did wonders for your serve.
- When you just feel like telling him you miss him after all.

Maybe you shouldn't tell him everything that's going on. But if you still care about him, why not call and whisper some sweet things he'll never forget?

Like why you call using AT&T Long Distance Service, and why you trust AT&T's high quality service and exceptional value.

When you tell him that AT&T gives you immediate credit if you dial a wrong number, he won't be able to get you out of his mind.

And telling him you can count on AT&T for clear long distance connections will drive him crazy.

All of which will probably inspire him to drive out for the weekend, giving you an excuse to blow off that silly frat party after all.

Playboy's quotes from UMR sources

Saint Patty's Day, naturally, is a runaway choice for big bashes—such as the one at the University of Missouri/Rolla with the famed eight-man quarter-keg Hop. Skip and Puke competition.

30. University of Missouri/Rolla: Known for its Saint Patty's Day explosion, which is more than your average brawl. "We have to party. The women are p---teasers who take engineering courses and cuss with the guys."

And from a University of Missouri trend-setter— "No one dresses up here. Not unless they have a job interview or something."
